A parakeet is not the only thing that needs to be bought. It may also be necessary to buy this parakeet a companion, food and accessories. You also need to know how to take care of it because birds have specific needs and complications like any pet. There is more to buying a parakeet than just going and getting it. If you don't know how to take care of him, it can be hard to keep him alive1. When you buy, you're not only buying the parakeetWhyWhen you buy your bird, you will also need to buy a house/cage for it, birdseed, accessories (things to put in the cage) and you may need to buy a companion. Here are some accessories that you may not have thought of, but should definitely be part of your purchase. Cage - You want to get one that has a lot of space, especially if you are going to buy a companion parakeet. Stand for the Cage - You don't usually think about a stand, but it's useful if you have somewhere out of the way you want to stick it. When we bought our first parakeet, we just put the cage out of the way in the kitchen in a place we never used. Our parakeet loved it there and was squawking happily all the time. Toys / Perch - Buying this will help your parakeet get used to things and also help them not to get bored. They need to be stimulated and entertained like people. Plus, it's a bit of fun watching your parakeet play in their cage. It's nice to see them happy and have fun. Birdseed - You'll want to keep your parakeet healthy and well fed, and good quality birds should do the trick. There are several different types. Keep in mind that he/she may not automatically like what you buy. (It would be wise just to give them the same thing they were fed at Petsmart- this will make their fit much easier.) When you learn more about your bird, you can find out what's safe for them to eat and try new snacks. Cage Cover - This will make them think it's night and they'll be silent while you sleep. Believe me, she's a savior! Don't leave Petsmart without it, if you've never owned a bird before. This cage lid will save your life. If you are already aware of the extra costs of buying a parakeet and are also familiar with the methods needed to take care of them, then you have this! Keep in mind that the number of birds you buy will also affect the number of accessories you will have buy.2. Parakeets Get LonelyIf you are often absent and will not be at home much, your parakeet may feel lonely. It doesn't need to have a companion, but it can be a wise thing to do if you're not home often. This is because, of course, you want to make sure that you have a happy and healthy pet. Even if your parakeet may feel lonely, it can build an even stronger one with you and other humans if it doesn't have a companion. Being alone will be happy to see you when you get home and he will want to be with you more. However, not all parakeets are the same, and some of them do not need or want companions. If you are not able to take care of several birds, things should work over time. Eventually, they can also get used to it and will not be as alone. Note: There is also a possibility that he will not be alone at all and will be fine on his own without a companion. Parakeets cost about $20-$25 at Petsmart. This price is relatively cheap and worth the purchase. Because they are not super expensive, I recommend you get a companion bird. If you have the means and time to take care of several birds, then both pets will live a happier life. The price is also quite reasonable. If your parakeet is alone, she may be depressed. You can tell if your parakeet is depressed or under time by a number of signs: If they fluff their feathers for long periods of time. If they are irritable If they lose appetite If they are aggressive If they have a sudden change in behaviour and/or quality of life, you will be able to say so. A companion bird may be the solution to this problem. You can also ask your local petsmart employee about the specific birds they have.3 Buy the Care GuidePetsmart has a care guide that tells you everything you need to know about caring for your parakeet. It may seem simple to keep your bird alive because it is small. However, there is more than you could guess. Note: Parakeets can be key rings. When handling them, make sure you always wash your hands before and after touching them so you don't get sick! My sister's parakeet died within 2-3 months. We don't know how he died, but I'm sure we weren't taking care of him the way we were supposed to. I have a lot of siblings and everyone thought everyone was helping my sister take care of her. My sister was really small, so she needed advice. Young children may have good intentions, but they cannot always follow all the needs of a pet. I can certainly guarantee that none of my brothers and sisters have the care guide provided, which means that none of us really knew how to deal with it. Taking care of your parakeet and giving it the attention it needs is super important. I looked at the care guide that Petsmart gives you and it's pretty clear and simple. They make sure the instructions are fairly simple to understand and follow. So read it and live by it.4. Parakeets can be trained to talk and respond to simple commandsThis is not a myth! Myth! can be trained to talk simple words and follow simple commands. You can train them to jump out of your hand and get back on it. Parakeets are very intelligent and can be easily trained. All they need is a little encouragement, perseverance and patience from their owner and they will be able to climb on your hand in no time. If you are looking for a talking bird, the parakeet is a good choice. It's a very fun pet. The one my sister owned learned to jump on her hand very quickly. All we did was hold the birds with our hands and he would jump on them. Eventually, he learned to do it without the need for birds and it was quite exciting to see him adapt and warm up to my mother so quickly. Parakeets can form close relationships with people. The more time you spend with your bird, the more likely it is to obey and understand simple drive controls5. Parakeets have an average lifespan of about 7-10 yearsA parakeets lifespan is not that long compared to humans. He will only live for about 7-10 years. Obviously, just with any other pet, if you take good care of it, you might be able to squeeze a few more years than that, but that's the average. Sometimes accidents happen, of course. Parakeets are curious birds and could be in dangerous situations if not properly monitored. Make sure your bird never eats anything harmful and keep it away from dangerous areas. So before you get your parakeet, know what you're signing up for. By buying this beautiful animal, you accept 7 years of protection, compassion and parenthood. It's a lot to sign up for if you're not used to engagement. Fun fact: The oldest registered parakeet was about 20 years old! That's crazy. Thus, it is possible for your bird to live more than 10 years. So unless there are crazy circumstances, your parakeet should be able to live a long, full life of about 7-10 years. It's a long time for such a small creature! They make great pets and will stay around for a long time if you take care of them properly.
